

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A medical information system has a patient server firstly retains vital information received from a patient terminal. The patient server transmits the vital information to a medical care provider server through a network. The vital information retained in the medical care provider server can be browsed from a doctor terminal.

20250423 14:30:00